Rudolph Man is Cut to Pieces by a Train on the St. Paul Road

Joseph Juneau, a resident of the town of Rudolph, was killed last night by being run over by a train on the St. Paul road about three quarters of a mile south of Rudolph station.

It is not known just how the accident happened, as it is supposed that he was alone at the time he met his death, as nobody has been found who knows anything about the matter. The remains were found about five o'clock this morning by parties from Rudolph, and the body was cut up in a horrible manner, both legs being severed from the body, and other cuts and bruises about the body, denoting that his death had been almost instantaneous.

Mr. Juneau had been at Rudolph during the evening and it is stated that he was under the influence of liquor when he started for home, and the supposition is that he either lay down or sat on the railroad track and dropped to sleep, where he was struck and killed by the train.

When the body was found the authorities in this city were notified and early this morning Justice Fritzinger and Under Sheriff Mike Mason went to the scene of the accident, where a coroner's jury was impaneled and an inquest held. At this writing the jury has not returned their verdict.

Mr. Juneau was a man about 30 years of age and was the oldest son of Paul Juneau, one of the old settlers of Rudolph. He is survived by a wife and seven children.

A Way to Improve a City.

One of our citizens who has been away from home recently tells of the manner that was employed in beautifying a city where he was visiting. The plan there was for the city to employ a landscape gardener at the expense of the city, who came to town and furnished advice to anybody who cared to beautify their grounds. As it did not cost the individual anything many took advantage of the opportunity to have a man that knew what he was talking about give them some advice, and the difference was at once noticeable.

NEW ATTRACTIONS

Fourth of July Committee Adding New Things to the Celebration Each Day.

The Fourth of July committee are thinking up new things every day for the celebration, which will occur in this city on Monday, July 12th, and there is no doubt but what when the day comes they will have a program that will be as good or better than any that has gone before.

The baseball game on that day will be between the Edwards boys in the team from this city. The program committee is putting up a lot for the team that wins. Each team are so confident of winning that they are putting up fifty dollars on each side, and the consequence is that the winning team will take a lot. There is no question but what it will be a really contested game from start to finish, and there is no reason why it should not be a good exhibition of the national sport.

The committee who have charge of the races have put on another race which will be known as a Farmers' Buggy Race, with two teams of four and five dollars. This should prove an interesting feature of the races, and should have a number of entries.

The race track is being put into good condition and it will be possible to hold some pretty good races on it. It will be four tenths of a mile in length and will be just the thing for features of this kind.

Music will be furnished by the band during the day, and the juvenile band will also be out to do what they can to liven up the occasion.

In the evening the paper-makers will give a dance at the Eagles hall, to which everybody who so desires will be cordially invited.

The contract has been made with Dorothy DeVonda to give a balloon ascension and parachute drop during the day of the 11th, and this will be a feature that will attract considerable attention. Miss DeVonda takes up a pet dog with her and the animal makes the descent in a separate parachute, so that two of them are coming down at the same time. Miss DeVonda has been here before and has never failed to fulfill her contract, and may be relied upon to do what she agrees to.

Will Improve River Bank.

Ben Hansen has been around among our public spirited citizens during the past week soliciting funds for the purpose of fixing up the river bank on the east side of the river. ## Expect a Big Crowd.

Tomorrow is the day the Eagles go to Wausau, and it is now expected that there will be a large crowd in attendance from this city, something like 200 people being expected to go over from this city. Special cars will be furnished, so that the passengers can stay right on board until they reach their destination. Fourth of July Committee Adding New Things to the Celebration Each Day.

The Fourth of July committee are thinking up new things every day for the celebration which will occur in this city on Monday, July 26th, and there is no doubt but what when the day comes they will have a program that will be as good or better than any that has gone before.

The baseball game on that day will be between Port Edwards boys and the team from this city. The program committee is putting up $100 for the team that wins. Both teams are so confident of winning that they are putting up fifty dollars on the side, and the consequence is that the winning team will take $150. There is no question but what it will be a hotly contested game from start to finish, and there is no reason why it should not be a good exhibition of the national sport.

The committee who has charge of the races have put in another race which will be known as a farmers buggy race, with two moneys of ten and five dollars. This should prove an interesting feature of the races, and should have a number of entries. The race track is being put into good condition and it will be possible to hold some pretty good races on it. It will be four-fifths of a mile in length and will be just the thing for features of this kind.

Music will be furnished by the band during the day, and the juvenile band will also be out to do what they can to liven up the occasion.

In the evening the papermakers will give a dance at the Eagles hall, to which everybody who so desires will be cordially invited. The contract has been made with Dorothy DeVonda to give a balloon ascension and parachute drop during the day of the fifth, and this will be a feature that will attract considerable attention. Miss DeVonda takes up a pet dog with her and the animal makes the descent in a separate parachute, so that two of them are coming down at the same time. Miss DeVonda has been here before and has never failed to fulfill her contracts, and may be relied upon to do what she agrees to.

Will Improve River Bank.

Ben Hansen has been around among our public spirited citizens during the past week soliciting funds for the purpose of fixing up the river bank on the east side of the river. He reports that the people have responded nobly to the call, and there is no doubt but what things will present a pretty decent appearance when all the work is done.

Want to Marry.

The county clerk issued the following marriage licenses the past week: Charles Winter of Grand Rapids to Lilly M. Wilborn of Seneca. Albert Leonard of the town of Rock to Lucy Filler of the town of Lincoln. Wm. Yeager of Grand Rapids to Mary Ryskowsky of Grand Rapids. John Bayer of Rosalia to Linnaea Miller of Milladore.

Father Korczyk to Leave.

Rev. Father Korczyk of the Polish Catholic church on the west side, has resigned his pastorate here and expects to leave on Thursday of next week for Milwaukee where he expects to take charge of a Catholic college. Rev. Korczyk has been stationed in this city during the past five years, and during this stay the congregation has built a church, school and parsonage, that are a credit to that part of the city. The congregation at the time Father Korczyk took charge of it numbered only about sixty families and at the present time it numbers fully twice this number, indicating a very healthy growth. Father Korczyk has many friends here both in and out of the church, who will be sorry to hear of his intention to leave.

Father Korczyk will be succeeded here by Rev. T. Wozak, of Brant, who is already known to a number of our people here.

Klug-Hulberg.

Miss Clara Klug of this city and Walter Hulberg of Two Harbors, Minn., were married on Monday, June 21st, at the east side Lutheran church, officiating. They were accompanied by Miss Laura Fritz as bridesmaid and Carl Evenson of Neeshah as groomsmen. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, and at noon the young couple departed for Duluth, where they will spend a week or more visiting. They will make their home at Two Harbors, where the groom is engaged in the jewelry business.

Mr. and Mrs. Hulberg take with them the best wishes of a host of friends in this community.

Expect a Big Crowd.

Tomorrow is the day the Eagles go to Waupun, and it is now expected that there will be a large crowd in attendance from this city, something like 20 people being expected to go over from this city. Special cars will be furnished, so that the passengers can stay right on board until they reach their destination. It is expected that there will be about a dozen bands in attendance, among them being the Marshfield band, as well as the one from this city.

Plover Had a Big Day.

Friday last is said to have been the biggest day that was ever seen in the little town of Plover. It was the homecoming day, and many who had been formerly residents of the place took advantage of the opportunity to go back there and renew old acquaintances. Among those who were there from Grand Rapids were P. B. Warner, Faye Warner, Mrs. Wm. Harmon, Wm. Harmon, Mrs. Eugene Miller, M. S. Pratt, Mrs. John Coalhart, Ellen Pettie, Manie Miller and Mrs. Kate Townsend.

Paper Towels for Schools.

The problem of providing sanitary towels for school rooms has been solved by the Montpelier, Vermont, school board. The board furnished individual paper towels. The cost is one and one-half cent a year for each pupil. This is less than the laundry bills for the roller towel. Educational Press Bulletin.

MR. PICKARD'S EXPERIENCE

"ON THE TRAIL OF A BOLD BUCCANEER," published herewith for the first time, is a bit of Venezuelan history which has never before been told and is not to be found in any of the standard historical works on Venezuela. It is replete with thrilling situations embodied in the capture of Caracas by Amory Preston's buccaniers. While the bandits were stealing along the secret mountain path to Caracas, the able-bodied inhabitants of the city took positions of defense along the main thoroughfare to the capital of Venezuela. The desperadoes were discovered by an old man who attempted to resist their invasion with true patriotic instinct. It was easy to overpower him. The Caracas traitor who guided Preston over the secret path was hanged before the city was entered. Once in Caracas, looting and murder held sway.

While in Caracas, visiting Cipriano Castro, who was then president of Venezuela, it was Mr. Pickard's good fortune to meet men who were familiar with this unrecorded invasion. Mr. Pickard gave them permission to make the journey over the secret mountain path. These photographs of the smugglers then inhabiting the mountain wilds, upon the Venezuelan government, caused the rupture between Holland and Venezuela, which trouble is said to have been the cause of the flight of Castro and his subsequent expulsion from most ports on this side of the world in the southern hemisphere.

"T"RAIL, over the mountains to Caracas," said the dusky, scantily clad woman who were energetically doing the family washing in the bustling street above Macuto. "Oh, yes, that is by way of La Guayra. There is no longer a direct path from here, but we have heard of the trail of the buccaniers."

"Direct to Caracas over the mountains?" said the little old keeper of the sea-baths, who has buried six wives and declares he is looking for the seventh. "Certainly there is such a route, but it isn't much used now, and you are sure to lose your way."

"Why, of course," cried Don Antonio, our host of the Casino de Macuto. "It is easily done, but you had better take a guide as far as the top. Here's Agapito, he will do. How much will you charge the honors, Agapito?"

"Five dollars," promptly replied the young peon. A general burst of laughter reduced his price to $2.00, and the bargain was struck. At four o'clock next morning we had a cup of coffee, packed our luggage, consisting of one pocket comb, and sallied forth in the wake of Agapito. Pretty little Macuto, her old man, and the lights of a score of fishing boats twinkled on the sea. The town once was a favorite resort of the well-to-do people of Caracas, but now counts her guests by the dozen, for she never has recovered from the destruction and terror caused by the earthquake of 1899.

Our guide's comment at the start seemed so hap-hazard that the doctor inquired somewhat anxiously if he was familiar with the route. "Yes, indeed," was the reply. "I spent seven months on this mountain not long ago as one of the revolutionists led by Gen. Matos, so I know all its trails."

So we scrambled on in the darkness unprotesting. Above us loomed the mighty bulk of El Picacho, forming, with his brother peak to the west, Silla, and the connecting heights, the range of Galipan over which we must pass. The path was rough and steep and twisting—used only by the goats," said I.

"I am, one," replied the doctor, grimly. Half an hour of clambering and we struck a better defined trail.

"This is the path taken by donkeys," explained Agapito. "I am one of these, also," muttered the Medicine Man. "And to think that Amory Preston led a band of armored and armed men by this trail to Caracas in the night! If I only had breath enough I'd tell you about it, but wait until we reach a resting place."

Higher and higher the steep ways we went and gradually the stars faded out, the bright birds began to whistle and sing all about us and the faintness of the tropical foliage through which we were pushing was revealed. Then a shaft of sunlight found its way through a cleft in the mountain range and struck El Picacho full on his rocky head. Facing about on a projecting corner of the path, we had spread before us the panorama of the Caribbean sea and Venezuelan shore. The waters were busily gathering their waves twinkled faintly and hurriedly to the waters. Skimming over the waves, they would share of the speed of the waters. Skimming over the waves, they would share of the speed of the waters. Skimming over the waves, they would share of the speed of the waters.

We were still sheltered from the sun's rays, the breeze was cool and Agapito moved at a leisurely gait, but our hearts pumped hard and our knees became wobbly. By ten o'clock the spurts of climbing were shorter than the periods of rest. By ten o'clock the spurts of climbing were shorter than the periods of rest. ## Building Railroads of Sheepskins

By Capt. Ellis D. Morson

RAILROAD building is now the order of the day in all countries, and though it seems almost incredible, the Turk has not only projected, but actually is constructing, and has partly finished, what will be one of the longest and most important railroad lines in the old world. Its object is to connect the political capital of Islam with the holy places which every Moslem is expected to visit at least once during his lifetime. As the Moslem world numbers from 175,000,000 to 200,000,000, the annual pilgrimage from all parts of the Mohammedan world is of enormous proportions. That from India and the east is provided for by steamship lines, but it is now proposed by the Turkish government to offer special inducements to its people in Asia Minor, Syria, Palestine and even North Africa, to make the sacred pilgrimages at their ease, by providing railroad transportation from Constantinople to Mecca.

To comprehend the magnitude of the enterprise, it is necessary to remember that old world distances are not always understood in the new world. The scale of the maps is usually much smaller, so we sometimes get the idea that the United States is the largest country on the earth, because it looks largest on the map. A better conception of the Turkish undertaking will be gained by the knowledge that, taking Constantinople as a center, Paris will be on the edge of a circle with a radius of 2,000 kilometers (about 2,250 miles), while Mecca will be 500 kilos beyond the edge of that circle. In other words, to make the matter plainer, the distance from Constantinople to Paris is about that from New York to Santa Fe, N. M., and from Constantinople to Mecca is approximately that from New York to Prescott, Ariz. The Turk, therefore, who has always been regarded as slow going, must be conceded to have more industry than generally goes to his credit. There is, however, behind the religious motive, a political end to be gained. The Sultan is the nominal head of the Moslem world. But as the holy places, Mecca, Medina and Jerusalem, are in lands under the influence of the ruling officials in those cities have, for hundreds of years, been quasi-independent, some have thrown off entirely the Turkish bond, and actually maintained their independence. Then, again, pilgrims from Syria, who attempt to travel by the caravan routes through Arabia, Petraea, and along the Red sea, have long been subject to the depredations of the Bedouin tribes at short intervals, would bring all north-west Arabia under rule, rather than nominal Turkish control, and restore to the Sultan genuine authority as "protectors of the holy places."

The Turkish government is always harassed by its creditors. The moment a plaster coat is tacked into the treasury, all the creditors make a grab for it, so the question of finance for the enterprise became one of prime importance, for no money, no road. In this dilemma the wily Turk hit upon a happy expedient. The Sultan issued an irade commanding that every Moslem family which sacrificed a sheep at the feast of Bairam should bring the skin to the nearest government official, and these skins should be sold for the benefit of the road. As every Turk does this, the killing of a Bairam, it was figured out that after the officials had stolen all they could with

THE SAME TOUCH OF NATURE

People of To-Day and Moslem Conqueror of Old Show Themselves Alike in One Respect.

Freight car No. 16,656 of the Pennsylvania railroad was held empty on a side track waiting until Mrs. Robinson Redburn completed the hatching out of a nest of fine eggs laid on a journal box while the car was in New York.

Touching, but no novelty. When mighty Amr and his legions overthrew Egypt and made all north-west Africa a stronghold of Allah and his prophet, they camped on the east bank of the Nile, opposite the ancient capital, Memphis, until they had picked the defenders of that ten-mile wide and twenty-mile-long city. When Amr had finished he thought of moving into the fine town across the river, for which the pale shades of the slaughter of Egyptians had no further use. But in the interval a dove had built its nest in the peak of his great tent.

Moslems are kindly to animals, which are beyond the possibility of being converted to Islam by the sword. Amr allowed that it would be a pity to disturb the dove. He delayed, however, until the new city gradually grew up on the bare plain to the north of his tent. In a word, Cairo rose out of the desert for the amazement of after ages, while the Memphis palaces of sun-dried bricks went back into the soil. To this day in South Cairo they will show you the original "Fostat," the "Place of the dove."—New York World.

SMALL GIRLS AGAIN TO RULE

English Fashion Journal Sees End of the Domination of the Tall Woman.

Brigades of exceptionally tall girls practically rule the catwalks of London. The English Lady's Pictorial, they need not be pretty or intelligent, for they are expected to do nothing except to be tall.

A tall girl season now means that every hostess must endeavor to produce a predominating impression of tallness at her parties. Tall dinners and tall dances become a social ambition, small men find themselves suddenly useful as an effective means of creating a contrast when semi-Arizona must be entertained.

There is no limit which can be regarded as reasonable when once the craze for tallness commences, yet at the moment when with that mysterious quality of the feminine nature, tall girls seem to be looming up in all directions, the edict goes forth that her reign is over and the little woman is in the ascendant.

Our Languages. What a lot of languages we talk, even if we talk only English! It was assailed by a man across the luncheon table with a language about a Cupid's final, and confessed that it was quite unintelligible. Then another man talked about golf, which is another language. And then the woman's language "elbows these columns." The Countess, who wore a greenish white marabout stole, and a black taffeta bow, garlanded her huge hat of burnt Tagel straw. It is a fine example of women's slang. But to the man it means nothing—but expense.—London Outlook.

Natural History as She Is Spoke. Doris lived in the city, and a summer visit to grandpa's farm revealed many wonders. After being treated to the farmer's luxury, cream, she was allowed to go to the barn to see the cows milked. She looked on with much interest for a while and then asked: "Grandpa, which is the little pocket she keeps the cream in?" The Delineator.

Cheerful/Courage Needed. The mental condition has to do with working power. Man is so fully and wonderfully made, so is woman. Each has a dual nature, and if not burdened with battling with other persons has enough to fight his own personal demon. A cheerful, personal demon. A cheerful, personal demon. A cheerful, personal demon.

bottle itself and when a few days old were able to drink from a pail.

They were fed whole milk until three weeks old and then were given one-half skim milk with one-half whole milk and a little bran once a day. When six weeks old they began to nibble oats and hay and soon grew mightily.

TIMOTHY IS BEST FOR HORSES

Clover and Alfalfa Also Good Feed, But Too Much of Either Must Not Be Fed.

Timothy is usually considered the best hay for horses. It is true that they do well on it, and that it furnishes a considerable amount of fuel and energy value. However, clover and alfalfa are good feed, even for work horses, if the horses are not fed too much of them.

Timothy is a horse at one feed. Clover and timothy mixed, as it is sometimes grown in meadows, is an excellent hay feed combining the good qualities of both.

It is a mistake to fill the manger full of hay and allow the horses to eat of it all day long. The only time a horse should be allowed to eat a full feed of hay is at night, while he is resting and when there is a long time for digestion. Hay is a bulky feed, and distends the digestive organs. A horse with his stomach stuffed full of hay must undoubtedly suffer discomfort in working and will not feed well in the morning.

Never feed mucky hay to horses under any circumstances, as the undigested spores of the mold set into the animals' lungs and impair the breathing, or wind power, which is a great loss with any work animal. Hay that is slightly musty should be sprinkled with water in the manger so that the horse will not be compelled to breathe the dust. Clover hay and corn make a tolerably well balanced ration for horses and cattle, and timothy goes well with them in furnishing the needed food elements. When oats are fed less hay is required, since oats are more bulky than other grain.

LIVESTOCK NOTES. Keep stall, either rock or barrel, along within reach of the cattle. Preferably differ as to which kind is best. A little grain for the calves is as sensible and remember that the first year's growth is the most important in the life of the animal.

Alfalfa mixed with other legumes and grasses will provide a great amount of fuel and a pleasing variety for all classes of cattle.

Forage crops for selling will keep the young stock growing and maintain the milk flow of the cows when the pastures get dry in late summer. Don't let the high prices of wheat and feed grains induce you to curtail your live stock operations. Stock keeping is an absolute necessity in modern farming.

It's a great loss when the stock does not have plenty of green forage. Temporary pastures of the small grains provide fine pasture and are not nearly appreciated.

This season is unusually late and pasture is far behind the average season. It will pay to keep the pastures in good thrift and not have them gnawed down to the roots at the beginning of summer.

The breeding bull should be kept in a thrifty condition at all times. He needs good care and feed to do this. The sire's physical condition at the time of breeding exerts much influence on the offspring.

One of the greatest advantages of mixed grass and legume pastures is that different varieties mature at different seasons and some of them are at their prime feeding value at all times of the pasturing season.

Sheep Manure. Prof. Fertilizer of Cornell University says the fertilizer produced by a sheep as a year is worth $3.17. While the most of this is left in the pasture, its value to the farmer depends much upon the condition of the grass there. Many of our pastures are in such condition that as much as they do fertilize, and until something is done to remedy this trouble the value of the manure made by the sheep would to some extent be wasted. We know that the sheep improves the pasture by killing many varieties of weeds, and thus gives the grass a better chance; but the sheep should not be forced to live entirely upon weeds.

Hogs in Clover. Farmers who think of raising hogs on rape in preference to clover, causing the gain in weight on such feed is greater, should bear in mind that clover enriches the soil and is therefore the cheapest in the end.

Feeding Cows. Animals of the same variety are not alike, and scarcely any two will do equally well on the same food. Each animal's wants should be well supplied, if possible. Cattle of different ages should be separated for feeding, as the younger will not do well with the strong. Cows are weak and shy; it takes them longer to eat their meals and they should therefore be put where they can not be molested by superiors in strength.

Colts and Calves. It is a mistake to allow the colts and calves to go onto pasture skin poor. Keep them in corn flesh with hay and grain foods. Corn and clover hay are about the best foods for these young animals, and they will eat them all the year round. Dry cows and horses are relieved by all cattle and horses as they come from dry summer pastures, and it is a good thing to give them a daily feed of it.

Life without cross-examination is no life at all.—Socrates.

ROMAN NOSE IN THE HORSE.

Generally indicates individuality and is Often Accompanied with Much Intelligence.

A Roman nose in a horse, like the corresponding aquiline shape in a man, generally indicates strong individuality, often accompanied with great intelligence.

A straight facial line is quite as often found with a high degree of intelligence, but a dish-faced horse is rarely anything but a nonentity in character or a fool. I have seen a few exceptions to this rule, but they only prove it.

A fine muzzle usually denotes a high nervous organization, while a coarse and large muzzle, with small and non-sensitive nostrils and pendulous lower lip, means stupidity.

A sensitive and trumpet-shaped nostril means courage and intelligence, even when, as it does sometimes, it also means hoariness.

A broad and full forehead and length from eye to ear are good general indications of intelligence, but the eye and ear are the spending features of a horse's face.

The ear is more intelligent even than the eye, and a person accustomed to the horse can tell all that he thinks or means. When a horse lays his ears flat back on his neck, he is usually, if not actually, in a most disagreeable mood, and the bystander should beware of his heels or teeth. In play the ears will be laid back, but not so decidedly nor so long. A quick change in their position, and more particularly the extension of the ear at the time of a sudden start, is a sure sign of a horse's intelligence. All experts agree that the ear of the horse is one of the most beautiful parts about him, and by this is the temper more surely indicated than by his motion.

QUALITY NEGLECTED FOR SIZE In Breeding the Former Has Been Sacrificed to the Latter by Many Farmers and Hog Raisers.

Of late years it has become quite a fashion with farmers and hog raisers to let our finances run away with us and breed our stock of almost every kind more for quality than for size. It is a matter of fact that when a farmer has five stock to market they will together weigh, and as a matter of course the number of pounds will weigh the greatest number of pounds will command the most money, and I think the habit of breeding more for quality than for size then in the fault of the judges in making their decisions.

In the show rings, as I think they award more prizes to the better, the quality animals, especially sows, than they do the larger type, declare Mr. Hart, in Kimball's Dairyman. If they would reverse their decisions it would let us all know where we are, and we would breed more for size than for quality.

When we make discrimination in favor of quality, what size in selecting our breeding stock, we also discriminate against productivity, as my experience has been the finer the quality the less prolific, and the weaker the constitution of the animal. Also a great deal of this defect is brought about by too close in-breeding, so they do the larger type, declare Mr. Hart, in Kimball's Dairyman. If they would reverse their decisions it would let us all know where we are, and we would breed more for size than for quality.

It matters not how large or how fancy a hog is bred—judiciously the pork barrel is the end of it, as it is the mark of natural common sense. All things being equal, the smaller the hog, the better the market, that the hog that weighs the greatest number of pounds will bring the most money. Therefore, brother breeders, let us breed more for size rather than let our fancies for quality overrule the better judgment, and not allow the fancy ones that are only fit to look at.

USING A LANTERN IN STABLE Method of Placing Light in Barn to Get Best Results; No Danger of Overturning.

A good way to get a good light in stable and avoid all danger of the lantern being overturned is to stretch a smooth wire from one end of the horse's stall to the other, and attach it to the wire and slide the lantern wherever it is needed. The wire should be high enough to be out of the way.

Goat Stock for Angora Crosses. A few years ago Mexican down were used extensively as a foundation stock for a flock of Angoras, using bucks of the latter.

However, when the method of building up a flock of fleece-bearing goats is now in vogue, or slightly, if at all. The practice flourished best when the goat raisers knew very little of the larger prices they might have obtained for a better grade of stock.

They were content with prices ranging from 14 to 22 cents a pound. Manufacturers have required better hair than can be produced by grades and this has tended to reduce very greatly the number of crosses.

Kicking Horse. To prevent a kicking horse from showing up his heels, a hitch like that shown in the above illustration will prove efficacious.

Colts and Calves. It is a mistake to allow the colts and calves to go onto pasture skin poor. Keep them in corn flesh with hay and grain foods. Corn and clover hay are about the best foods for these young animals, and they will eat them all the year round. Dry cows and horses are relieved by all cattle and horses as they come from dry summer pastures, and it is a good thing to give them a daily feed of it.

A new counter-top $5 bill has been found in circulation in Milwaukee and other Wisconsin cities, and a warning to merchants and citizens in general has been issued by the secret service department, as it is a particularly dangerous one. The bill is a series 1880, Indian head, and is a photo mechanical production printed on good quality bond paper, blue ink lines having been used to imitate the silk lines of the original. It is betrayed by the poor character of the work on the Indian head, the color and workmanship of the blue seal, and the large amount, however, are far from being equally deceptive. Officials say it is a dangerous one counterfeiter to detect.

It takes a pretty brave man, or one that talks before he thinks, to say anything against the school system of today. No matter how much he may imagine that it would be better for the boys and girls to be studying over the arithmetic tables than to be making baskets out of raffa, he will be a trifling careful how he mentions the fact in the hearing of any man in any way connected with the school system. He may think it would be better for his boy if he could spell the common words used in ordinary conversation and better writing than to be able to draw a hum imitation of a book cover, but it would not do for him to breathe a word of it to his wife who, by superhuman efforts, and at great expense to the commonwealth at large, has succeeded in having a new department established in the kindergarten so that the little ones may be informed along the lines of hypnosis research and the psychology of suggestion. But it seems that there was one fellow, one David R. Forgan, down at Chicago, who recently got up and said what was in his mind about the public schools of that city, where they are supposed to have the greatest schools in the west, and what he had to say was not exactly complimentary concerning the present school system. But it seems that it had some weight, as they have abolished algebra and Latin from the lower grades and they will hereafter turn some of their attention to the study of the three "R's." And it is thought, by some people, at least, that the children will be better fitted to bump up against the hardships of this world with a good working knowledge of some of the humbler things of life, than with a smattering of the more complicated studies. Whether the educators have dubbed Mr. Forgan an old fogey and a back number is not known at the present time.

It takes a pretty brave man, or one that takes before him thinks, to say anything against the school system of today. No matter how much he may imagine that it would be better for the boys and girls to be studying over the arithmetic tables than to be making baskets out of raffia, he will be a little careful how he mentions the deficit in the hearing of any man in any way connected with the school system. He may think it would be better for this boy if he could spend the common words used in ordinary conversation and letters writing than to be able to draw a pen imitation of a book cover. But it would not do for him to breathe a word of it to his wife who, by her monumental efforts, and at great expense to the commonwealth at large, has succeeded in having a new department established in the kindergarten so that the little ones may be informed along the lines of hygienic research and the psychology of suggestion. But it seems that there is one fellow, one David R. Forgan, down at Chicago, who recently got up and said what was in his mind about the public schools of that city where they are supposed to have the greatest schools in the west, and what he had to say was not exactly complimentary concerning the present school system. But it seems that it had some weight, as they have lowered algebra and latin from the lower grades and they will hereafter turn some of their attention to the study of the three "R's." And it is thought, by some people, at least, that the children will be better fitted to bump up against the hardships of this world with a good working knowledge of some of the simpler things of life, than with a smattering of the more complicated studies. Whether the educators have dubbed Mr. Forgan an old fogy and his number is not known at the present time.

 amount of labor expended in the making of a football. The leather used is of "split" cowhide, ordinary cowhide being too thick for the regulation leather.
 Previous to splitting the leather has been soaking in the tan pits for ten or twelve months. The "split" hide is well softened with tallow and then passed to the cutter, who cuts out the various sections, which, sewed together, make a perfectly round ball. The bladder is made of Para rubber. This is inflated by machinery, and the tube is then laced up. Finally it passes through the hands of the shaper, who puts down any inequalities in the shape, or contour of the ball.—London

The public schools in Washington have just observed what is called "vine day" for the first time. It came about through the inspiration of Miss Susan D. Sipe, instructor of botany in the Washington Normal school, who proposed such action, "to beautify all back fences that abutted on the streets, and on those lawns which are generally used as thoroughfares, by having vines of different kinds planted on either side." The project was promptly endorsed by the local board of education.

The unveiling of a statue of Henry W. Longfellow in Washington last week was an event of national interest, and it was very fitting that representatives of the national government participated in the ceremonies. Washington abounds in monuments to great Americans, most of whom were regarded as soldiers or statesmen. But Longfellow is given a place as a representative of American literature, and the choice was happy. He was the most beloved of American poets, and none better illustrated the American spirit.

The New York court of appeals is to pass on whether the constitutional right to the pursuit of happiness extends to a man's satisfaction in having his rooster crow at hours of the night which deprive other men of that constitutional happiness which lies in slumber. The question appears trivial, but so determined is the man in the case to enjoy this constitutional privilege, as involving a supreme right, that he says he will carry his rooster's midnight crow to the supreme court of the United States, if necessary.

The authorities of large cities will have soon to deal with the problem of safety of children in the streets. TAFT FOR TRUST TAX

PRESIDENT URGES TWO PER CENT. ASSESSMENT ON UN-DISTRIBUTED EARNINGS.

CONGRESS RECEIVES MESSAGE

Washington.—If the recommendations embodied in a message sent to congress Wednesday by President Taft are carried out a tax of two per cent on the undistributed net earnings of trusts and other corporations will be provided for in an amendment to the tariff bill and the income tax question will be left to the states for settlement. It is believed the senate will adopt the president's plan.

This understanding was reached at a session of the cabinet and was approved by Republican leaders of the senate who conferred with the president. In order that there shall be no question that the two propositions recommended have the support of the administration, Attorney General Wheelerham drafted both the amendment and the resolution. The corporation tax amendment was referred to the committee on finance and the resolution submitting the question of amending the constitution to the committee on judiciary. Doubtless both of these committees will report promptly so that all of the questions involved may be disposed of when the pending income tax amendment is taken up for consideration.

In view of the emphatic stand taken by President Taft against a direct tax upon incomes, in the face of the decision of the supreme court of the United States on that subject, and his preference for the proposed tax upon the earnings of corporations several progressive Republicans have indicated their intention of introducing legislation to free the states from the income tax.

At the same time, however, not all of the progressive Republicans are satisfied with this administrative program and it is probable that some of them will voice vigorous protests. Democratic senators also are expected to lodge in strong criticism denunciation of the tax on corporations as a substitute for a direct tax on incomes.

This, as well as many of his advisers, Mr. Taft would be a reform which would produce great satisfaction in the minds of the people, and at the same time give the business corporations a standing which otherwise it would be impossible to attain.

The president believes a provision for the imposition of such a tax can be framed on the basis of the internal revenue law, giving the government full power to investigate the books of corporations to determine their earnings. He also believes that such a provision could be drawn so as to be held by the supreme court to be constitutional. The president's recommendation that the tax should be introduced as to time, as this feature is considered essential to the success of the proposed law in having publicity.

Senator Borah announced he proposed to cast his vote for inserting the amendment which tied the Philippines to the United States. He declared himself in favor of giving the Philippines an independent government.

EX-PRESIDENT CONDEMNS ALL FORMS OF TYRANNY.

Compares the Rule of the Corporations with That of a Blood-thirsty Mob.

New York.—Former President Roosevelt in an article in the Outlook, of which he is an associate editor, discusses political problems which confront the United States through the development of power by the great corporations.

Taking for his subject "The Tyranny of Nations," Mr. Roosevelt says it behoves our people never to be misled by designing people, who appeal to the reverence for or antipathy to a given name in order to achieve some alien purpose. The rule of a mob, he declares, may be as tyrannical and oppressive as the rule of a single individual, and the rule of an oligarchy, whether this oligarchy is a plutocracy or a bureaucracy, may be as sordid and bloodthirsty as that of a mob, but the mob leaders are of this state that all that they are doing is necessary in order to achieve the cause of "Liberty," while the dictator and oligarchy are usually defended upon the ground that the course they follow is absolutely necessary so as to secure "order."

"Many excellent people are taken in by the use of the word 'Liberty' at the one time," says the ex-president, "and the use of the word 'order' at the other and ignore the simple fact that despotism is despotism, tyranny is tyranny, oppression is oppression, whether committed by one individual or by many individuals, by a state or by a private corporation. All forms of tyranny and cruelty must alike be condemned by honest men."

"We in this country have been very fortunate. Thanks to the teaching and the practice of the men whom we most revere as leaders, of the men like Washington and Lincoln, we have not escaped the twin galls of despotism and mob rule, and we have never been in any danger from the worst forms of religious bitterness. But we should therefore be all the more careful, as we deal with our industrial and social problems, not to fall into mistakes, similar to those which have brought lasting disaster on less fortunately situated peoples."

BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE

SUPREME COURT DECLARES THE ACT IS INVALID.

Registration Feature Chief Cause for Adverse Decision by State's Highest Tribunal.

Springfield, Ill.—The new primary election law of Illinois is unconstitutional according to an opinion of the supreme court. The decision is made in the case of the People on the relation of Phillips against Sheriff Strassheim of Cook county, in which Phillips was indicted on the charge of making false affidavits at a primary election and obtaining a writ of habeas corpus in the state's highest tribunal.

The supreme court holds that the primary law is unconstitutional because it requires in section 4 that no person except persons registered at the last previous election can vote at a primary election, yet makes no provision for the registration of voters, and because section 11 provides that the senatorial committee may by resolution decide how many candidates each party may nominate for the legislature and that only that number of candidates may be voted for thus depriving the voters of their constitutional right under the election law to vote for as many candidates as there are offices to be filled and to cumulate their votes. For these reasons the entire act is declared unconstitutional.

In the case of Penabody against Treasurer Thompson of Cook county, in which case the lower court sustained the demurrer to the petition of Penabody for a mandamus to restrain Thompson from paying the officers of the primary election, the supreme court reverses the judgment of the Circuit court of Cook county and remands the case.

STRANGE CULT IN KANSAS.

Band of Fanatics Subject Themselves to Bites of Snakes as Religious Test.

Hitchinson, Kan.—Pursuing their more weird than those of the most fanatical Mormon sects, and even more revolting than the most savage of the religious sects of the early Indians, a cult has sprung up near Hutchinson that is being closely watched by the authorities.

The law is powerless to interfere until some member of the sect dies a victim to its barbaric practices. It has been found out that just as the ancient Indians plunged their arms into buckets of boiling pitch to ascertain whether they were immune to pain so it is claimed that Snake Worshipers subject themselves to the bites of poisonous reptiles as a supreme test of grace.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Ralph Shull, a wealthy young lumberman of this city, who was sentenced to the workhouse for five days, without the option of a fine, for exceeding the speed limit in his automobile, said he would serve his term.

"A man who owns an automobile," said Judge Smith, "can easily pay a fine, therefore a straight workhouse sentence is the only remedy to stop this speeding by automobilists."

"Judge Smith is right," said Mr. Shull. "I am guilty and I will serve my time in the workhouse without any bitter feeling toward the court."

H. Harriman, whose intention it was then stated, was to transfer it to the Illinois Central. The price paid by the Central was not given out.

Crown Point, Ind.—Keyed to the highest pitch of excitement by the great race of the small machines won by the Matson in the Chalmers Detroit Friday the great crowd here for the automobile race Saturday was wild with enthusiasm as the big cars started on their mad dash.

It was estimated 25,000 persons thronged the race track at points along the 24 miles course and it was held Saturday that at least 50,000 more watched the big machines as they dashed around the course.

The soldiers had great trouble keeping the great mass of people on the track and reports have been received that others were mired.

Saturday's race was the most severe test of machines and drivers in the history of stock car racing in America. Twelve cars, two Locomobiles, two Appersons, three Buicks, two Stoddard-Taylors, two Knox, and a P. I. A. T. were entered. The cars are of 40 and 45 horsepower.

The race was a 24-mile dash, the first lap being 3.955 miles.

Matson piloted the Chalmers-Detroit "Blue Bird" to a brilliant victory over 15 rivals in the 24-mile contest. The Friday race was for light cars only and while of great importance in itself, was generally considered a preliminary to the race of the big cars for the Cobb Cup, over the same course, Saturday. Perfect weather and the absence of any save the most trivial injuries to drivers were the fortunate circumstances attending the winning of the Indiana trophy by Matson.

The field numbered 16 cars at the start, the Ford and Renault having withdrawn. The leading time list was as follows:

Chalmers-Detroit (Matson). 4:31:21.

Locomobile (Robertson). 4:39:03.

Marion (Monahan). 4:42:07.

The time of the other cars was not listed as they were dropped off the course after the first three had finished.

When it became apparent, as the initial race in the two-day contest, drew to a finish, that the victory lay between Matson, Robertson and Monahan, the affair increased in dramatic intensity, each of the leading candidates was described on the hill top to the south, where the all-stained sand, fringed by two gray streaks of light, or earth at the side seemed to most the horizon, the chests of the spectators began.

The race which was an hour later in starting, owing to the delayed arrival of the automobiles, for the transportation of the audience to their station around the course, was finally got under way when Starter Frank Wagner slapped Matson's, the Corbin driver, on the back and the machine shot across the line. The remaining cars were dispatched at minute intervals.

The second lap brought about the downfall of Louis Strang, who was admitted the favorite driver before the race because of his previous success in other parts of the country. He covered the first lap in the shape in 2:32.75 but half way round on the second, he was put out of the contest by the sudden necessity for using his hands. He had pursued a car for several miles, and thinking he was about to have an opportunity to pass, he turned back with his best speed. He had not time to go by, however, and to avoid crashing into the car ahead, he applied the brake so suddenly that his transmission gear was stripped from the rear axle.

Matson, who finished the first lap in an apparently hopeless position, steadily forged to the front. Matson was forced to relinquish his lead for a brief period at the end of the fourth lap, when Knipper forged ahead by the scant margin of two seconds, with Poole a close third. From this time on Matson was never in danger, as he steadily increased his lead until he had passed a car for minutes ahead of the field. Matson's teammates were unable to maintain the terrific pace. Knipper dropped out of the race at the end of the fifth lap, and Poole encountered many difficulties in his sixth round, which occupied 50 minutes.

Stutz, in a Marion, made a desperate race and was well up when he blew out a cylinder, just north of the grandstand, during the eighth lap. His car ran into the shallow ditch at the side of the track, but he and his machine escaped with a few bruises.

The interest in the last lap centered in the race for second place between Robertson in his Locomobile, and Monahan, at the wheel of a Marion.

Indian Lad Killed Four Relatives.

Salt Lake City.—Dan Tso, a 17-year-old Navajo Indian, pleaded guilty in the United States district court in the charge of murdering four of his relatives several months ago at Aneth, in a remote part of the state. He was sentenced by Judge Marshall to serve a term of ten years in the Federal asylum prison at Leavenworth, Kan., and pay a fine of $100. The boy killed his aunt, uncle, sister and a cousin in resentment of a threat of the uncle to punish him for refusal to work.

"I was not told the whole truth"—William Jennings Bryan

In a speech made in the Gulf Coast country of Texas in December last, Hon. William Jennings Bryan said—

"The trip through your fertile valley has been a succession of surprises to me and the only fault I can find is that I was not told the whole truth. The development surpasses the reports which I had heard. I am pleased with the soil and the climate, and besides having natural advantages you have the advantage of irrigation."

"You are creating wealth and what you make you are entitled to. You are earning legitimate fortunes."

Yes and liberal fortunes too, for money is made quickly and easily in the Gulf Coast country of Texas. Profit of from $300 to $1000 an acre are the rule, not the exception.

Why don't you do the same? You don't need much capital. You can buy the few acres you need on easy terms and the next crop, if properly cared for, should more than pay for the land.

O. Fungus, Mercedes, Texas, bought for over last fall. Including clearing, plowing, etc., it cost $2000. He has shipped enough beans from the land to pay for it in less than six months and can raise another crop before the year is out.

"FAITH" ALL THAT WAS LEFT

Symbols of "Hope" and "Charity" Had Got Away from Unfortunate Sunday School Scholar.

A young Philadelphia Sunday school teacher told this story of the result of an attempted application of the principles of economics:

For some time she had endeavored to impress upon the minds of one of her charges the names of the three qualities, faith, hope, and charity. One Sunday she presented the pupil of the poor memory with three new shilling coins, a penny, a five-cent piece, and a dime.

"The penny," she said, "represents faith, the five-cent piece hope, and the dime charity. Keep these coins and every time you look at them think of what they stand for."

The Sunday following the teacher reviewed the lesson of the week before, and called upon the holder of the coins to produce them and give their names in proper sequence. The youngster shuffled from one log to the other, stammered, blushed and pined altogether overcome with mortification. Finally he burst out with:

"Please, Miss Wagner, I ain't got nothing left but faith. Baby swallowed hope, and mamma took charity and bought ten cents' worth of meat for making hamburger steak out of."

"What," asked Arlene A. when the new editor had taken charge of The Daily Chattahoochee, "is going to be your policy?"

"My policy, my friend, in going to be to tell the truth according to my lights, and let the chips fall where they may."

"Stranger, that's a good policy, but be sure before you go to press that you've got your lights adjusted to suit all parties. This is a bad place for people who get the wrong focus."

The public schools in Washington have just observed what is called "book day" for the first time. It came about through the inspiration of Miss Susan B. The project was promptly endorsed by the local board of education.

TAFT FOR TRUST TAX

PRESIDENT URGES TWO PER CENT. ASSESSMENT ON UN-DISTRIBUTED EARNINGS.

Washington.—If the recommendations embodied in a message sent to Congress yesterday by President Taft are carried out a tax of two per cent on the undistributed earnings of trusts and other corporations will be left to the states for settlement. It is believed the senate will adopt the president's plan. The understanding was reached at a session of the cabinet and was approved by Republican leaders of the senate who conferred with the president. In order that there shall be no question that the two proposals recommended have the support of the administration, Attorney General Wickham drafted both the amendment and the resolution. The corporation tax amendment was referred to the committee on finance and the resolution submitting the question of amending the constitution was referred to the committee on judiciary. Doubtless both committees will report promptly so that all of the questions involved may be disposed of when the pending income tax amendment is taken up for consideration.

In view of the emphatic stand taken by President Taft against a direct tax upon incomes, in the face of the decision of the supreme court of the United States on that subject, and his preference for the proposed tax upon the earnings of corporations several progressive Republicans have suggested the idea of following his recommendations. At the same time not all of the progressive Republicans are satisfied with this administrative program and it is probable that some of them will voice vigorous protests. Democratic senators also are expected to object to the tax on corporations as a substitute for a direct tax on incomes.

This, as well as many of his advisers, believe would be a reform which would produce great satisfaction to the people at large, and at the same time would be a business proposition standing which otherwise it would be impossible to attain.

The president believes a provision for the imposition of such a tax can be framed on the basis of the internal revenue law, giving the government the right to investigate the books of corporations to determine their earnings. He also believes that such a provision could be drawn so as to be held by the supreme court to be constitutional. The president recommends that the tax should be considered essential to the success of the proposed law in insuring publicity.

Senator Borah announced he proposed to cast his vote for loosening the hand which laid the Philippines to the United States. He declared he was giving the Philippines an independent government.

ROOSEVELT HITS TRUST POWER

EX-PRESIDENT CONDEMNS ALL FORMS OF TYRANNY.

Compares the Rule of the Corporations with That of a Blood-thirsty Mob.

New York.—Former President Roosevelt in an article in the Outlook, of which he is an associate editor, discusses political problems which confront the United States through the development of power by the great corporations.

Taking for his subject "The Tyranny of Money," Mr. Roosevelt says it behooves our people never to be misled by designing people, who appeal to the reverence for or antipathy toward a given name in order to achieve some alien purpose. The rule of a mob, he declares, may be as tyrannical and oppressive as the rule of a single individual, and the rule of an oligarchy, whether this oligarchy is a plutocracy or a bureaucracy, may be as sordid and bloodthirsty as that of a mob, but the mob leaders usually state that all that they are doing is necessary in order to advance the cause of "Liberty," while the dictator and oligarchy are usually defending upon the ground that the course they follow is absolutely necessary so as to secure "order."

"Many excellent people are taken in by the use of the word 'Liberty' at the one time," says the ex-president, "and at the other time they ignore the fact that the use of the word 'order' at the other time is a despotism, tyranny, oppression, whether committed by one individual or by many individuals, by a state or by a private corporation. All forms of tyranny and cruelty must alike be condemned by honest men."

"We have been in the past very fortunate. Thanks to the teaching and the practice of the men whom we most revere as leaders, of the men like Washington and Lincoln, we have hitherto escaped the twin evils of despotism and mob rule, and we have been in any danger from the worst forms of religious bitterness. But we should therefore be all the more careful, as we deal with our industrial and social problems, not to fall into mistakes similar to those which have brought lasting disaster on less fortunately situated peoples."

KILLS ILLINOIS PRIMARY LAW

SUPREME COURT DECLARES THE ACT IS INVALID.

Registration Feature Chief Cause for Adverse Decision by State's Highest Tribunal.

Springfield, Ill.—The new primary election law of Illinois is unconstitutional according to an opinion of the supreme court. The decision is made in the case of the People on the relation of Phillips against Sheriff Strassheim of Cook county, in which Phillips was indicted on the charge of making false affidavits at a primary election and obtains a writ of habeas corpus in the state's highest tribunal.

The supreme court holds that the primary law is unconstitutional because it requires in section 4, that no person except persons registered at the last previous election can vote at a primary election, yet makes no provision for the registration of voters, and because section 11 provides that the senatorial committee may by resolution decide how many candidates each party may nominate for the legislature and that only that number of candidates may be voted for thus depriving the voters of the electoral right under the election law to vote for as many candidates as there are offices to be filled and to cumulate their votes. For these reasons the entire act is declared unconstitutional.

In the case of Peabody against Treasurer Thompson of Cook county, in which case the lower court sustained the demand for the election of Ben Thompson for a mandamus to restrain Thompson from paying the officers of the primary election, the supreme court reverses the judgment of the Circuit court of Cook county and remands the case.

HOG TUBERCULOSIS GROWS.

Two Per Cent. of Those Slaughtered Have the Disease Say Government Reports.

Washington.—Tuberculosis among hogs is on the increase and is spreading to other animals, say reports gathered from the various meat packing centers of the country by the department of agriculture.

A year ago there were more than 55,000,000 hogs in this country, valued at more than $200,000,000. Federal inspection of the abattoirs shows two per cent of the hogs slaughtered to be affected with tuberculosis, while reports from Europe show a far more widespread infection, running as high as 5.5 to 7.5 per cent.

It has been found that hogs contract the disease principally through feeding. Samples of raw skimmed milk fed to hogs from creameries in one of the leading dairy states were injected into guinea pigs and in one instance virulent bacilli were recovered. Hogs from a leading Oklahoma state are remarkably free from tuberculosis, due to the fact that they are fed from birth to maturity on alfalfa, oats, corn, rape and peanuts.

Senator Elkins Says Heart Affection Is Cause of Daughter's European Trip.

He said the young woman had for some time had a slight heart affection, which is always materially augmented by heat and that her physician had directed that, upon the approach of hot weather, she should immediately seek the cooler zones of the European continent.

The senator added that the duke was still engaged in his mountain explorations.

AUTOS IN BIG RACE

GREAT CROWD WILD AS GIANT MACHINES SPEED AROUND COURSE.

Crown Point, Ind.—Keyed to the highest pitch of excitement by the great race of the small machines won by Joe Matson in the Chalmers-Detroit Friday the great crowd here for the automobile race Saturday was wild with enthusiasm as the big cars started on their mad dash.

It was estimated 250,000 persons witnessed the race Friday at points along the 23-mile course and it was held Saturday that at least 50,000 more watched the big machines as they dashed around the track.

The soldiers had great trouble keeping the great mass of people off the track and reports have been received that others were injured.

Saturday's race was the most severe test of machines and drivers in the history of stock car racing in America. Twelve cars—two Locomobiles, two Appersons, two Buicks, two Stoddard-Chalmers, two Knox, and a P. I. A. T.—were entered. The cars are of 40 and 45 horsepower. The race was at 17 laps—355.5 miles.

Matson piloted a Chalmers-Detroit "Blue Bird" to a brilliant victory over the field in the 23-mile contest. The 15 rivals in the 23-mile race only Friday race was for the prize only and while of great importance in itself, was generally considered as preliminary to the race of the big cars for the Cobb Cup, over the same course, Saturday. Perfect weather and the absence of any save the most trivial injuries to drivers, the unfortunate circumstance attending the winning of the Indiana trophy by Matson.

The field numbered 16 cars at the start, the Ford and Renault having withdrawn. The leading trio finished as follows:

Chalmers-Detroit (Matson) 4:31:21

Locomobile (Robertson) 4:42:03

Marion (Monsen) 4:42:03

The time of the other cars was not taken as they were flagged off the course after the first three had finished.

When it became apparent, as the initial race in the two-days' contest drew to a finish, that the victory lay between Matson, Robertson and Monsen, each of the leading candidates was described on the hill-top to the south, where the oil-stained road, fringed by two gray streaks of light earth at the side seemed to meet the horizon, the cheers of the spectators began.

The race, which was an hour late in starting, owing to the belated arrival of the auto-trucks for the transportation of the millionaires to their station around the course, was finally got under way when Starter Frank Wagner slapped the flag and the "Cobb" driver crossed the line. The remaining cars were dispatched at minute intervals

HER INFINITE VARIETY

SYNOPSIS.

Senator Mark Vernon's visit with his family to the country is the subject of this story. The family is made up of Vernon, his wife, and their children. They are staying at a country house called Meadowbrook. The story follows their various adventures and the interactions between the family and the local people.

Vernon was of this crowd, smiling from one group to another, smoking, laughing, talking. His heart may have been a little sore at the thought of Amelia's situation, but he did not let it show. He was a man of many parts, and he knew how to keep his own counsel.

He found it pleasant as he threaded his way through the crowd to half a dozen others as he met them and say:

"Well, the woman's situation is coming up to-morrow. You'll be for it, of course."

It gave him such a tentative and statesmanlike importance to do this. As he was going down the stairs, he was looking at the crowd of people, and he was thinking of the woman's situation. He was a man of many parts, and he knew how to keep his own counsel.

"Have you any business to do this?" he was asking. "No, I'm all for it. Come and have a cigar."

They went over to the cigar stand, and when they had lighted their cigars, Vernon said:

"Let's go out for a little walk; I may be able to tell you something that will interest you."

CHAPTER IX.

Vernon was glad enough of a breath of the evening air, and they went down the steps to the sidewalk. Along the sidewalk many men had placed chairs and in these cool and quiet eddies of the bustling stream of politics they joked and laughed peacefully. Sixth street stretched away dark and inviting. Vernon and Cowley turned southward and strolled along companionably. The air was delicious after the blaze of the hotel; the black shade of a moonless night was restful, their cigars were fragrant.

"I've just not had a story," he said, "and I'm looking for one. I've just not had a story, and I'm looking for one. I've just not had a story, and I'm looking for one."

"Porter and Bradwood are against your resolution," Cowley spoke these names in a tone that told how futile any opposition would be. "And Wright and his fellows are against it, too," he added.

"Nonsense," said Vernon. "Well, you'll see," replied Cowley. "But they told me—"

"Oh, well, that's all right. They've changed in the last day or two."

"Why?"

"Well, they say it's risky from a party standpoint. They think they already have all the lead they want to carry in the fall campaign. Besides, they—"

"What?"

"They say there's no demand for such a radical step, and so see no reason for taking it."

Vernon laughed.

"All right," said Cowley in the careless tone of one who has discharged a duty. "Wait till you see Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop land in here to-morrow."

"Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop?"

Vernon stopped still in the middle of the sidewalk and turned in surprise and fear to Cowley. Cowley enjoyed the little sensation he had produced. "But they were all for it," Vernon muttered.

"Oh, well, you know they never took the thing very seriously. Of course they passed it in the house just to line up old man Ames for the apportionment bill. They didn't think it would amount to anything."

"Yes, I know—but Mrs. Burley Greene—"

"Well, she's a pretty woman; that's all."

"You bet she is," said Vernon, "and she'll be down here again to-morrow, too."

"Will she?" said Cowley, eagerly, with his strange smile.

"Yes—but, look here, Charlie," Vernon exclaimed, "don't you go mixing ready made the same observation. He did, this time, perhaps a little more stress on the "at last." She must have noted that fact, for she blushed, and the strawberries she brought to him over with a critically pointed fork.

"And did you come down alone?" Vernon went on.

"No, not exactly," said Miss Greene. "Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop, and I, however, were—"

"Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop?"

"I think," said Miss Greene, "that she sits somewhere behind." There was a twinkle in the eye she lifted for a instant from her berries.

Vernon scanned the dining room. There was Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop in all her—and yes, beside her, sheltered snugly under her all-protection wing, was Amelia Ansley! They were at a long table, Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop at the head, and with them half a dozen women, seven, and most aggressively respectable. They sat all of them erect, peering at their food with a distrust that was not so much a material caution as a spiritual evidence of their superiority to most of the things with which they were thus in contact every day. Their hats scarcely trembled, such was the house's propriety of their attitudes, they did not load at all, even to the cream.

Vernon, who was taking all this in as a glance, saw that Mrs. Overman Hodge-Lathrop was severer than he had ever imagined it possible for woman to be—even such a woman as she. He would not have been surprised had he suddenly been told that her name had acquired another by-phen, certainly her dignity had been re-ephemerated. There sat, with her broad shoulders and ample bust, her arms jangling the sleeves of her jacket.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Have a wire screen for each crack so as to "bar the cream" and keep out flies and insects.

Give your neighbor a lift when you find a good chance, and you will find he will be glad to help you out sometime.

The farmer who is always finding fault with the weather has a most uncomfortable time of it, and it doesn't help him in the least in overcoming the conditions.

Provide shade for the chickens. And be sure that they have fresh water all times. Do not let their drinking dish be so placed as to catch the hot sun all day, and do not let it become foul.

Better lighted farm houses, music and inviting reading matter on the sitting room table have done much to solve the problem of keeping the boys on the farm. Make home attractive, and don't crowd the work too hard.

It is safe to say that in every dairy where record is kept and the farmer does not know what the individual cow is doing that there are cows which are robbing their owners right along. It will pay the farmer to know what each animal is doing for him. Why milk and feed an unprofitable cow?

A one-quarter-inch rope is large enough in throwing a cow if it is used properly. The animal to be thrown is confined by the head, one end of the rope tied to the horns or about the neck, a half-inch chain about the ankle, and another just back of the fore legs. Then by simply pulling on the rope and tightening the half hitch, the animal will go down. Try it once and see how easy the cow falls.

The practice of dipping animals to rid them of vermin is coming to be more general on the farm. Sheep dipped as often and as thoroughly as they should be, are very little troubled by scab, mange and like diseases. These external parasites are much more easily combated than are the internal ones. In general, keeping the sheep under the most sanitary conditions, and in the best state of health possible, and applying externally and internally, medicines detrimental to the growth of parasites, will even in this day and age when parasites are numerous, result in keeping a flock free enough from them so that good profits can be made. The man who is willing to exert himself a little along these lines need not fear to enter upon the sheep business nor continue in it.

Indeed in spite of its drawbacks, there is no other business that can be conducted upon a similar capital that will return as large profits if only it is properly handled. If willing to try your share of the conflict, let not the fear of invading hosts of parasites deter you from sheep growing.

The method of a New Zealand dairyman, Mr. John Saxon, expert in raising calves, will prove of interest to American dairymen. He says: When calves are put on half milk and half cream, they should be fed on a small allowance of boiled linseed oil. When boiled for half an hour the seed should be strained away before mixing the oil with the milk, as the oil tends to irritate a young calf's stomach. Boiled linseed was much used in England 60 years ago, and the calves reared on whey and boiled linseed grew into first-class cattle. But they must be carefully attended to when young, and be sure they have a paddock of clean grass to run in. This I consider one of the chief things in rearing calves. My reason for advocating careful attention to this is: I see many dairymen who feed a calf a small amount of dried blood for each calf and mix the same with cream. Usually a marked difference is seen after the first dose, and they seldom require more than the second dose. But should the scour come on again, I repeat the dose. I am a believer in dried blood, and always keep it on hand.

Here are some rules to remember in the care of cream: Keep the separator in a clean place, free from dust and odors and where there is good circulation of air. It goes without saying, of course, that the separator itself must be kept scrupulously clean. Cream testing to 30 per cent. of fat will keep better, that is, not sour as quickly as thinner cream, and will be better from a butter-making standpoint. There is the further advantage that more cream can be retained on the separator. The cream should be cooled to at least 50 degrees immediately after separation, and then kept cool until called for by cream hauler, or until time for churning, when of course temperature should be raised to 60 degrees. The cream from each milking should be thoroughly cooled before being added to that from previous milkings. The cream should be delivered to the creameries in a sweet condition. If the preceding is not strictly enforced it is advisable to have the cream delivered in an individual can. The buttermaker would have the opportunity of rejecting first-class butter, or of giving instructions for its improvement, and in that respect be placed on even terms with his brother buttermakers in a whole milk creamery.

A successful raiser of hogs keeps part of the sow with the cattle, and for the rest he has a 60-acre pasture. After the crops are out of the way in the fall he gives the hogs the run of the farm.

Barley makes a very good nurse crop for grasses, as it does not shade them for so long a period as some other nurse crops, nor is the shade so dense. Since the growth of barley is not so tall as that of other nurse crops, it is admitted during the maturing period of the barley.

Know what your cows are doing and then get rid of the unprofitable ones.

You cannot afford to stint the ration as long as there is good market for the products.

The silo enables the farmer to carry more head of stock than he otherwise would be able to do.

Look ahead and remember to provide with plenty of help for harvest time which is surely coming.

The manure heap is not the farmer's bank unless he gets it out on the land. Then it returns good interest.

Keep the enthusiasm going in the corn. The yield will be increased, and when the drought comes it will not easily affect the crop.

In the presence of high-priced wheat it is comforting to remember that "free and loan meal" isn't at all bad and makes good bone and muscle.

Have a place for the tools and see that they are put in their places after you have done using them. Many a precious moment is wasted on the farm by failure to observe this good rule.

Make successive plantings of corn up to the last of June to keep a supply of green food for the cows, and so you will not have to break into the silo supply until the winter is fairly on us again.

If the little chicks appear mopey, look for head lice. If you find them infested with coal oil to the head—note too much—and you will find that your chicks will brighten up and prove more thrifty.

The drained soil is more profitable, being more quickly gotten into condition for crops and insuring a better condition all through the growing season. It is also true that crops in drained soil do not suffer as much from drought as do crops in undrained soil.

If you have much clover hay to handle, provide yourself with a supply of hay caps made of canvas and use them in covering the hay during the curing process. This will enable you to put the hay into the barn in perfect keeping condition and will more than save you the price of the hay caps.

Smear the noses of the sheep with tar to prevent the attack of the fly which lays the eggs from which the grubs that cause all the trouble are hatched. The sheep will tar their own noses if you take a log and bore two-inch auger holes in it. Place in the holes salt and smear the edges with tar. When the sheep go after the salt they will get the tar on their noses.

You can get rid of plant lice that suck the juices out of the plants by syringing or sprinkling them with tobacco water, made by soaking the stems or leaves till about the color of strong tea. Apply it just as the roses are coming. Dost the roses leaves on the under as well as the upper side with ashes or air-slaked lime, to destroy the green worms which skeletonize the leaves.

Manure on the udder and hind quarters of the cows is not only unsightly but unsanitary both for the cows and for those who use the milk produced from such animals. There are several devices for preventing a cow from lying down in her own filth. The most common is the rubber flange. Another plan is to place a two-by-four plank across the stall at the rear. When the cow lies down she will always lie in front of this board where the droppings fall. The floor should slope from front to back.

The Tennessee experiment station is the latest institution to make a test of what the milking machine will do, and the following is the summary of its investigation: 1. Under the conditions existing during the test at the station, machine-milking has been found to be slightly superior to hand-milking. 2. Under superior conditions a cow is milked as clean with the machine as by hand. An expert operator can milk cleaner with the machine than the average man will by hand. 3. If the teat cups and mouth pieces are properly adjusted, the machine is not injurious to the teats and udder or objectionable to the cows, some even preferring it. 4. The machines are not difficult to keep clean and a high grade of milk is secured when machines are used. If neglected, however, they soon become filthy and are a serious source of contamination. 5. One man running two machines is nearly equal to two hand-milkers. There is a great difference between the number of cows different men will milk per hour. To secure the best results, the operator should be a clean, honest, and intelligent man. 6. Troubles that occur in operating are due more to misuse than to any fault of the machine. 7. Some cows give more milk by machine-milking and others less. Present knowledge indicates that machine milking is as efficient as hand-milking under average conditions. A large deal better grade of milk can be secured if the herd were selected for uniform tests of good size.

Sod land makes good ground for potato growing.

The Ontario experiment station tested field peas as a green manure in preparation of the soil for winter wheat and found that an average of about 6.5 bushels more wheat per acre was secured than where bare wheat was sown. Thoroughly ripened winter grain produced a greater yield of both grain and straw and a heavier yield, as shown by seven years' work, than wheat cut at any of the four earlier stages of maturity.

WOMAN'S REALM

ECONOMY IN DRESS

POINTS OF ESPECIAL INTEREST TO BUSINESS WOMAN.

Garments That Seem Expensive Really Are the Cheapest in the End—Important Essentials for Workaday Neatness.

It would be absurd to make the statement that there are fashions designed especially for business women. The woman who goes forth to work is not a slave apart from the rest of womankind, but one with her sisters, and entitled to every privilege which she can pay for. But it is necessary to put the curb on this privilege with actual business garments, for custom has made a certain plainness desirable for these.

This plainness is accomplished most often by a coat and skirt suit of some

Has Some Advantages Not Grasped When Examined the First Time

Dr. Moncrea Dunn, inventor of the Dunn ballot, was in the city on Monday looking after some business matters, and while here he favored the Tribune office with a pleasant call and explained the workings of his ballot.

It might be stated parenthetically that the legislature passed a law last winter which authorizes the use of the Dunn ballot, and any counties in the state who see fit to do so can now adopt the ballot as their method of voting.

The ballot comes in the form of a sheet of thin cardboard, with the names of the candidates on the card, each political party being on a different card and each of a different color, so that it is impossible to make a mistake if a person can see and has any intelligence whatever.

The pieces of cardboard are fastened together with a staple, and each piece is so perforated that it can readily be torn apart and any names that the voter wishes can be used to vote.

The collection of ballots is handed to the voter in an envelope with a double pocket, and along with the double envelope is another smaller envelope that fits into one of the pockets. The voter takes the envelope into the booth and tears off what names he wants to vote and places them into the colored envelope and sends it up. Then the names that he did not vote are placed into the lady of the large envelope and are also folded up. Then the colored envelope is slipped into the pocket on the side of the large envelope and the whole thing is placed into the ballot box.

When the votes are to be counted the colored envelopes are taken from the large one, and as this is done they are numbered in relation, so that the colored envelope and the white envelope that went into the box together have the same number on them, and can be referred back to at any time.

A special tally sheet will go with the method to facilitate the counting as well as the record, and as every ballot is counted the number is placed on the tally sheet. The tally sheets hold twenty-five numbers, and as each sheet is finished it is compared with the other one that has been kept at the same time, and if there is any discrepancy it is a very easy matter to go back and refer to the ballot where the mistake was made and rectify it.

The parts of the ballot that are not voted are left sealed up in the large envelope and are never used unless it is necessary to have a recount later on, when they can be opened and the vote counted from the parts that are left as readily as they were from the original ballot.

It is hardly possible that it may sound a trifle complicated to read about it, but when one has one of the ballots in his hand it is a very simple matter to vote for who you want to. It is possible to vote a straight party ticket the same as any, and it is a very simple matter to split the ticket if the voter so desires.

Mr. Dunn has made some very marked improvements in the ballot, since he first invented it some years ago, and it looks now as if it might be a good way of voting.

Education in the South.

One of the most cheering signs as to conditions in the southern states is the increased appropriations which the legislatures are giving to the state universities, agricultural and mechanical colleges, and colleges for higher education of women.

For buildings, support and equipment Virginia appropriated at the last session $366,000; North Carolina, $270,000; South Carolina, $288,000; Georgia, $362,000; Florida, $197,000; Kentucky, $178,000; Tennessee, $20,000; Alabama, $215,000; Mississippi, $367,000; Louisiana, $27,000; Arkansas, $150,000, and Texas, $323,000.

To these amounts are to be added the receipts from the funds established by congress for agricultural colleges and some other funds.

THE DUNN BALLOT

Has Some Advantages Not Grasped When Examined the First Time

Dr. Monceau Dagn, inventor of the Dunn pocket ballot, was in the city on Monday looking after some business matters. and while here he favored the Tribune office with a pleasant call and explained the workings of his ballot.

It might be stated parenthetically that the legislature passed a law last winter which authorizes the use of the Dunn ballot, and any counties in the state who see fit to do so can now adopt the ballot as their method of voting.

The ballot comes in the form of a sheet of thin cardboard, with the names of the candidates on the card, each political party being on a different card, and each of a different color, so that it is impossible to make a mistake if a person can see and has any intelligence whatever. The pieces of cardboard are fastened together with a staple, and each piece is so perforated that it can readily be torn apart and any names that the voter wishes can be used to vote.

The collection of ballots is handed to the voter in an envelope with a double pocket, and along with the double envelope is another smaller envelope that fits into one of the pockets. The voter takes the envelope into the booth and tears off what names he wants to vote and places them into the colored envelope and seals it up. Then the names that he did not vote are placed into the body of the large envelope and are also folded up. Then the colored envelope is slipped into the pocket on the side of the large envelope and the whole thing is placed into the ballot box.

When the votes are to be counted the colored envelopes are taken from the large one, and as this is done they are numbered in rotation, so that the colored envelope and the white envelope that went into the box together have the same number on them, and can be referred back to at any time.

A special tally sheet will go with the method to facilitate the counting as well as the record, and as every ballot is counted the number is placed on the tally sheet. The tally sheets hold twenty-five numbers, and as each sheet is finished it is compared with the other one that has been kept at the same time, and if there is any discrepancy it is a very easy matter to go back and refer to the ballot where the mistake was made and rectify it.

The parts of the ballot that are not voted are left sealed up in the large envelope and are never used unless it is necessary to have a recount later on, when they can be opened and the vote counted from the parts that are left as readily as they were from the original ballot.

It is barely possible that it may sound a trifle complicated to read about it, but when one has one of the ballots in his hand it is a very simple matter to vote for who you want to. It is possible to vote a straight party ticket the same as now, and it is a very simple matter to split the ticket if the voter so desires.

Mr. Dunn has made some very marked improvements in the ballot since he first invented it some years ago, and it looks now as if it might be a good way of voting.
